From Community Lay Director

Can you believe that Moses parted the Red Sea with God's help? Heck, I can't even part a cup of water, much less a whole sea. Making manna fall from the sky! Wow, that's some kind of miracle. Don't think that I could pull off that one either. How about Jesus turning water into wine? I can turn white milk into chocolate milk with the help of Nestlé's. Not quite the same I suppose.

I know that we are all ones that, to one degree or another, need that visual reassurance of reality. Personally, I am a pretty analytical guy and, as far as faith goes, a slow learner. I like to see things to verify their existence. This trait is pretty counterintuitive to what we as Christians hold dear, our faith.

I admit that I struggle from time to time and need that visual confirmation of God's presence in my life. I may not need to have manna land on my head, but I do appreciate that little reassurance in one form or another. I just need to be observant for the means by which God lets me know that he's there. This may be a sunrise, a baby's cry, a certain verse that touches my heart or any number of things.

It's a mindset. As much as I hate to admit it sometimes, things aren't really in my control. Our culture teaches us that we control our own destiny and that we can do anything that we choose if we only practice enough or set our mind to it. I'd still bet that I'll never be able to part a sea or turn water into wine without a little help, no matter how much I wanted to or practiced. We also can't say that it will never happen to us. Moses thought that way and look at how God used him. In what fantastic way might God use each of us if we'd only let Him and give Him the glory?

Tyler will be stepping down as our Community Lay Director as the new Board is installed during June.

We thank him as well as All the Board Members who will be rotating off this year for their hard work and dedicated leadership.

ELECTION RESULTS

As we all know, Emmaus or Chrysalis doesn't just happen, it takes many sets of hands to carry out what God has in store for our community. Over the last several months, two teams of individuals have been in much prayer in an effort to assemble a group of people that were willing to serve on the Emmaus or Chrysalis boards. This cycle occurs annually as a new set of gifts and talents are made available to our boards in an effort to bring glory to God through the Emmaus and Chrysalis community that we are a part of. The boards aren't intended to do everything, but hopefully enable the community to be blessed even more through the opportunities afforded to each of us.

This year we welcome the following individuals to the Emmaus board; Jennifer Cox, Maxton Craven, Jenn Foy, Rick Lewis, and Ann Moore. We also welcome the following individuals to the Chrysalis board; Craig Robertson (2013), Lynn Chaney (2013), Amanda Kidd (2012), Cecil Lake (2012), Amanda Winfrey (2012), Reba Lamb (2011), and Billy Jarrett (2011). For those who agreed to run, but were not selected at this time, thank you for your willingness. We would encourage anyone who feels led to serve on the boards at a later time to please contact a board member and let that be known.

There are a number of committee or team opportunities available to anyone that wishes to help out in any of the functional areas. Everyone is encouraged to become more actively involved at this level so that we can help spread the Grace both inside and outside of our community. All you need to do is ask and any board member will gladly help you find a spot that suits your interests and gifts. We are all one body and it does truly take all parts to make these things that we call Emmaus and Chrysalis work the way that God intends for them to. Please join us in supporting both boards, and especially the newest members, with your prayers, your presence, your gifts, your service and your witness.

DeColores and Fly With Christ!

From Caterpillar to Butterfly!

I wanted to start out saying how glad I am that God put the calling in my heart to go to this flight. I became closer to friends who came with me, and made new relationships with many others that I know will last a lifetime.

Before going on this flight, I hadn't thought much about God and my relationship with him. I was one of those "go with the flow" Christians that went to church all the time, but didn't really get much out of it.

I play in both praise bands that are at my church the Sunday morning services, and the Sunday evening youth stuff. I just pretty much went to church just to go, since my parents go and I'm part of the band anyways.

I always had a hard time praying and talking to God, because I never knew what to say. I had started to stray away from him. But, after going on this flight, I feel like I got just what I needed to open my eyes to God's love. It felt like God had us talk about just what I needed to hear.

When I came home, it was like I was on top of the world. It was hard jumping back into the world I had left for the weekend. Just like Debbie Kennedy said on the last day of the flight, you go home changed, but the world is just like you left it.

It was hard at first. On my first day back I wore one of my agape, a cross necklace, and every time I felt like I was straying away, I would hold it and say a little prayer to myself.

I bought some devotionals while there, and they are pretty much what get me through the week; that and my church youth group. This flight has changed my life, and I am very excited for those who go on the next, because they are in for a journey of a lifetime.
